for space exploration. More than the historic and successful launch of Explorer 1, the first U.S. satellite, it was the beginning of an unprecedented era of exploration and understanding of our own planet and the distant worlds beyond. The more we uncover about the mysteries and beauty of space, the more we are inspired to go farther. Yet,

Space and Time: From Antiquity to Einstein and Beyond ... a manifestation of space-time geometry. Space-time of general relativity is supple and can be visualized as a rubber sheet, bent by massive bodies. The sun for example, being heavy, bends space-time enormously. Planets like earth move in this curved geometry.
